

TWO FUNDS RAISED TO CLEAR FAMOUS MURDER MYSTERY

Killing of Kentucky Girl and Arrest of Doctor Caused Drastic Steps to Help Clear Up Crime.

(Special to The News Scimitar.)

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 6.—Two funds are being raised in Kentucky for the purpose of throwing light on a murder. It is the first time in this state when it has been thought necessary to take such action. Newspapers and clubwomen are appealing to the public for money to be used in running down the mystery of Miss Harlan Parsons, teacher at Pine Mountain settlement school, Harlan county, last Sept. 7.

Dr. H. C. Winnes, a member of the state veterinarian's staff, is accused of the murder. A negro convict is also accused, but his possible participation in the murder has practically been lost sight of in the larger importance of the Winnes case. Winnes' friends in Letcher county, where he has lived several years, have been lost sight of in the public for more to be used in his defense, declaring their belief in his innocence, and that they expect to stick to him.

The Parsons murder is the most sensational case involving a killing in Kentucky in many years. Miss Parsons had started to walk from Harlan county, where she was teaching with her parents who live in the Bluegrass section of the state. Before she left for the mountain school, she had a friend who had a presentiment she was to meet with harm, and that she would not return to the school if she had not promised the bond to return.

Thrown Over Cliff.

She left the train at Dillon station. Winnes had also been a passenger. Winnes was on his way to the school to inspect the dairy herd. He inquired from a bystander about the whereabouts of the teacher. Miss Parsons overheard his query and telling Winnes she was a teacher at the school, said there were about 200 pupils at the school. Winnes asked Miss Parsons if she was going to the school, and when she replied that she was, offered to get her a ride to the school, as the walk to the station is over a lonely mountain road. She declined the offer.

Dr. Winnes says he later started for the school, arriving there about such delay that suspicion was first directed at him. He has offered an alibi covering the time and his alleged expenditure of time at the school. He never saw Miss Parsons again. When Winnes arrived at the school, he told of having seen Miss Parsons at the station. She had been killed, and Winnes developed a peculiar way as he lay along a route not far from a camp occupied by convicts sent to Harlan county to work on roads.

A search was begun which took in most of the mountain country around the school. After two days Miss Parsons' mutilated body was found at the foot of a precipice. She had been strangled, murdered by being beaten with a fence rail, which was found on the hill, and her body buried over the cliff.

Winnes Gives Up.

Winnes had gone to Frankfort in the meantime, and as he was the last person known to have seen Miss Parsons, suspicion pointed to him. Winnes' read of his being suspected and went to the chief of police at Frankfort, told him he was the man mentioned in the story and asked if he should tell him about the case. He offered to surrender. The Frankfort chief agreed and Winnes telegraphed to Chief of Police McFarland at Hazard, offering to return and help clear up the mystery. A Harlan deputy sheriff was in Frankfort and Winnes returned with him.

Winnes was given a hearing and promptly dismissed.

Nearly two months later, a large number of clubwomen, in a movement started at Paducah, issued a statement calling on Gov. Morrow to have the case reopened and thoroughly investigated. A detective had been employed by the school and authorities, but, claiming could not secure proper co-operation in his search, had given up the case.

State Senator Hiram Brock, a political leader of the mountain country, interested himself in the case and Winnes was rearrested. After a long trial, he was ordered held for hearing, which will probably take place in January. A negro convict was also held for trial. Other negro convicts are to be examined.

TAX PAYMENT TANGLE CLEARED BY OPINION

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 6.—There continues to be much anxiety throughout the state as to how much time will be allowed the taxpayer this year for payment of taxes. Overcoming the distressing conditions prevailing, especially among the farming population, tax collectors are desirous of holding off as long as possible while at the same time fulfilling their duties under the law. The attorney-general's office has had the matter up several times and a final opinion was given out Friday covering the subject.

The gist of the opinion is, as to real property, that, while the statute provides for advertisement of property Jan. 15 if taxes are not paid, the supreme court has decided that this is not obligatory on the collector, and the collector may advertise at any subsequent date, so long as he gives the "three weeks notice" required. Damages do not attach until after the property is advertised and listed for sale, and under the new law damages collected must be paid into the treasury.

It is therefore of no personal interest to the collector to collect damages on delinquent property, and the attorney-general intimates that he is complying fully with the law if he does not advertise until after Feb. 1, provided he then collects damages on all property thereafter listed for sale. Taxes on personal property may be delayed in a similar way. The law requires the collector to collect by distress as soon as it is "reasonably possible" after Dec. 15. The attorney-general holds that it is not reasonably possible to collect by distress in the midst of taxpaying season, and that the law is fully complied with if the tax collector collects the taxes with all damages at a later date up to Feb. 1. No damages attach until he does something to collect the tax.

DYER COUNTY MAKES GAIN

NEWBURN, Tenn., Dec. 6.—According to the report of the government, there were 9,175 bales of cotton ginned in Dyer county up to Nov. 14. Compared with the same date last year, there were 7,958 bales ginned. This year's crop was exceedingly much better than the previous one, it having been placed on the market 30 days earlier.

Kentucky Tobacco Growers Face Unusual Situation; To Contest Low Price Move

(Special to The News Scimitar.)

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 6.—The hundred thousand producers of white burley tobacco in Kentucky have laid down the gauntlet against any move to lower the price of leaf on the markets in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Tennessee, wherever white burley is grown.

There is now in process of formation the Burley Growers' association, with headquarters in Lexington. As soon as the Kentucky parent stem is at full strength, which is estimated by Dec. 31, the other states mentioned will be visited by organizers and the growers asked to join the association, which has for its object the cutting out of a large part of the 1921 crop and the withholding from the market this season enough of the 1920 crop to force an adequate price paid on the breaks.

The farmers have held scores of mass meetings over the state within the last three months and from reports in the hands of the association, the growers' costs from 25 to 30 cents a pound to produce. It has been selling on Lexington and other Kentucky markets at 40 cents a pound over a month.

This season, however, it has been given out that the manufacturers have great stocks on hand and that a lower price is practically a certainty. A wide spread of indignation was the result of this knowledge.

A mass meeting was called at Lexington, at which speakers stated that the tobacco growers were ordered by an association to not produce tobacco next year, many would not heed the admonition, and that a result would be a tremendous increase in the price of tobacco. The growers are now prosperous, bringing up their children on their own farms and raising crops for themselves, instead of some of the tenants.

Twelve years ago the tenants—and many of the landlords—in the Kentucky tobacco district made up an desperate lot of people.

As a result of the tobacco growers' pool, the tobacco price has risen to a point where the growers are now prosperous, bringing up their children on their own farms and raising crops for themselves, instead of some of the tenants.

In those days there was little or no competition for tobacco and the prices paid were pitifully low. Hundreds refused to join it. Barn burning, scraping of plant beds, whipping of men by night, and other depredations by armed bands of night riders, marked an effort to "cut out" and pool the tobacco crop, with a view of holding it until one evening of the same day, Mr. and Mrs. Minor will leave for Pine Bluff, Ark., the old home of the bride.

Troops had to be called out and kept in the disturbed sections of the state for months and the state was in a rebellion, so far as the tobacco districts were concerned.

But the pool held, and the prices began to increase. The figures quoted at the head of this story were paid last season—the most prosperous ever known to Kentucky farmers.

The manufacturers are in a competition and their buyers are paid the price the farmers demanded. Whether this will be the case this year remains to be given as a sure riding, some of the farmers claim knowledge of a move to not produce a crop next year.

Thousands of farmers are at their wits' end for relief. Mortgages have become due soon, and unless tobacco sells at a good price the economic visit, after a long illness. She was an aunt of Col. Winston F. Garth, of Huntsville.

LEXINGTON, Tenn.—The funeral of Mrs. J. P. Parker, who died suddenly in her home in the town of Wildersville, this county, was held at the Jones graveyard, two miles west of Wildersville. The surviving husband, now retired, was for many years one of the leading merchants of Wildersville and of Henderson county. Surviving are nine children.

HAZLEHURST, Miss.—Mrs. Edward Anderson, aged 78, died at the home of her daughter here. She was buried in the Pine Bluff cemetery, where her husband is buried. She had lived in the Pine Bluff community most of her life.

NEWBURN, Tenn.—Mrs. Ella Featherstone, died at her home in Tatumville, a few miles east of Newburn, after an illness extending over a period of several months. She was the wife of Tommie Featherstone, a well-known Dyer county citizen.

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark.—John W. Hunt, an old resident of this city, died at his home in Potosi, Mo., after a short illness caused from a fall in his store about a week prior to his death. Mr. Hunt and his family are remembered here, where he was in business under the name of J. W. Hunt & Son.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—John E. McDougal, prominent farmer, died at his home and was buried in the Savannah cemetery. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

CORINTH, Miss.—James Strachan died at his home Wednesday morning in the Hopewell community. He was one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of that community. Mr. Strachan came to this country years ago with a number of others from Scotland and located in the community where he died.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn.—A. S. Simpson, a well-known farmer of District 15, died at his home following an illness of several months. He is survived by five children and one brother, Rev. R. Simpson, a member of the Methodist conference.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Louis De Mark, a volunteer of the interior garage, was seized with an attack of angina pectoris, an affection of the heart, while at the office of the physicians summoned immediately. Dr. De Mark died in about an hour. He came here six months ago from Pine Bluff, Ark., where his wife and child are now living.

MARRIAGES.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Miss Mary Susan Wilson, of Huntsville, and Wayne Clifton Rogers, of Scottsboro, were married in Birmingham, according to cards received here by friends. They will make their home in Scottsboro.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—A beautiful wedding occurred at Minter city church when Miss Mary Kempton Pleasant became the bride of John Hughes. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a bridal trip.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Mr. and Mrs. Matt Donovan announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna May, to Wiley Mitchell, the wedding to take place early in 1921.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—Dr. T. L. Thomas and Miss Effie Young were married here, Dr. J. J. Ramsey officiating. They will make a short bridal trip to Florida.

LESLIE, Ark.—Miss Florence Wallace, operator in the Southwestern Telephone office at this place, and Rev. Arthur Culom were married here.

RIPLEY, Miss.—Wallace S. Moffitt, of Ripley, and Miss Mildred Barker, of Chubasco, were united in marriage Sunday by Rev. G. S. Jenkins, pastor of the Baptist church at Chalchate.

SENATOBIA, Miss.—W. B. Hall and Miss Myrtle Higginbotham, both of Senatobia, were married in Memphis, they will make Senatobia their future home.

MACON, Miss.—G. R. Stryker and Miss Elmer Kennedy were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage this morning by the Rev. Olin Ray. Mr. and Mrs. Stryker left immediately for Meridian for a short bridal trip.

WALTHAM, Miss.—Mr. Clarence E. Price, from Clay county, and Mrs. Virgie Lee Stagg, daughter of Hon. Joel T. Gibson, who resides in the neighborhood of Magnolia, were happily married last Sunday at the home of the bride's parents.

WALTHAM, Miss.—W. V. Aven, son of William Aven, now dead, and grand-son of the first sheriff Webster county, ever had, and Miss Louie Winter, daughter of Tom Winter, were married last Sunday.

HOLLANDALE, Miss.—On Sunday afternoon Louis Thompson, of this city, and Miss Thomasa Mays, of Clarksdale, were married in the Methodist parsonage, the Rev. J. A. George officiating, in the presence of a few friends.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heaton of this city were announced the engagement and approaching marriage on Dec. 22 of their daughter, Miss Marie Heaton, to C. R. Minor, the wedding to be held in the Catholic church of Clarksdale, with Father Keenan officiating. During the evening of the same day, Mr. and Mrs. Minor will leave for Pine Bluff, Ark., the old home of the bride.

Troops had to be called out and kept in the disturbed sections of the state for months and the state was in a rebellion, so far as the tobacco districts were concerned.

But the pool held, and the prices began to increase. The figures quoted at the head of this story were paid last season—the most prosperous ever known to Kentucky farmers.

The manufacturers are in a competition and their buyers are paid the price the farmers demanded. Whether this will be the case this year remains to be given as a sure riding, some of the farmers claim knowledge of a move to not produce a crop next year.

Thousands of farmers are at their wits' end for relief. Mortgages have become due soon, and unless tobacco sells at a good price the economic visit, after a long illness. She was an aunt of Col. Winston F. Garth, of Huntsville.

LEXINGTON, Tenn.—The funeral of Mrs. J. P. Parker, who died suddenly in her home in the town of Wildersville, this county, was held at the Jones graveyard, two miles west of Wildersville. The surviving husband, now retired, was for many years one of the leading merchants of Wildersville and of Henderson county. Surviving are nine children.

HAZLEHURST, Miss.—Mrs. Edward Anderson, aged 78, died at the home of her daughter here. She was buried in the Pine Bluff cemetery, where her husband is buried. She had lived in the Pine Bluff community most of her life.

NEWBURN, Tenn.—Mrs. Ella Featherstone, died at her home in Tatumville, a few miles east of Newburn, after an illness extending over a period of several months. She was the wife of Tommie Featherstone, a well-known Dyer county citizen.

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark.—John W. Hunt, an old resident of this city, died at his home in Potosi, Mo., after a short illness caused from a fall in his store about a week prior to his death. Mr. Hunt and his family are remembered here, where he was in business under the name of J. W. Hunt & Son.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—John E. McDougal, prominent farmer, died at his home and was buried in the Savannah cemetery. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

CORINTH, Miss.—James Strachan died at his home Wednesday morning in the Hopewell community. He was one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of that community. Mr. Strachan came to this country years ago with a number of others from Scotland and located in the community where he died.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn.—A. S. Simpson, a well-known farmer of District 15, died at his home following an illness of several months. He is survived by five children and one brother, Rev. R. Simpson, a member of the Methodist conference.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Louis De Mark, a volunteer of the interior garage, was seized with an attack of angina pectoris, an affection of the heart, while at the office of the physicians summoned immediately. Dr. De Mark died in about an hour. He came here six months ago from Pine Bluff, Ark., where his wife and child are now living.

MARRIAGES.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Miss Mary Susan Wilson, of Huntsville, and Wayne Clifton Rogers, of Scottsboro, were married in Birmingham, according to cards received here by friends. They will make their home in Scottsboro.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—A beautiful wedding occurred at Minter city church when Miss Mary Kempton Pleasant became the bride of John Hughes. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a bridal trip.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Mr. and Mrs. Matt Donovan announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna May, to Wiley Mitchell, the wedding to take place early in 1921.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—Dr. T. L. Thomas and Miss Effie Young were married here, Dr. J. J. Ramsey officiating. They will make a short bridal trip to Florida.

LESLIE, Ark.—Miss Florence Wallace, operator in the Southwestern Telephone office at this place, and Rev. Arthur Culom were married here.

RIPLEY, Miss.—Wallace S. Moffitt, of Ripley, and Miss Mildred Barker, of Chubasco, were united in marriage Sunday by Rev. G. S. Jenkins, pastor of the Baptist church at Chalchate.

SENATOBIA, Miss.—W. B. Hall and Miss Myrtle Higginbotham, both of Senatobia, were married in Memphis, they will make Senatobia their future home.

MACON, Miss.—G. R. Stryker and Miss Elmer Kennedy were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage this morning by the Rev. Olin Ray. Mr. and Mrs. Stryker left immediately for Meridian for a short bridal trip.

WALTHAM, Miss.—Mr. Clarence E. Price, from Clay county, and Mrs. Virgie Lee Stagg, daughter of Hon. Joel T. Gibson, who resides in the neighborhood of Magnolia, were happily married last Sunday at the home of the bride's parents.

WALTHAM, Miss.—W. V. Aven, son of William Aven, now dead, and grand-son of the first sheriff Webster county, ever had, and Miss Louie Winter, daughter of Tom Winter, were married last Sunday.

HOLLANDALE, Miss.—On Sunday afternoon Louis Thompson, of this city, and Miss Thomasa Mays, of Clarksdale, were married in the Methodist parsonage, the Rev. J. A. George officiating, in the presence of a few friends.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heaton of this city were announced the engagement and approaching marriage on Dec. 22 of their daughter, Miss Marie Heaton, to C. R. Minor, the wedding to be held in the Catholic church of Clarksdale, with Father Keenan officiating. During the evening of the same day, Mr. and Mrs. Minor will leave for Pine Bluff, Ark., the old home of the bride.

Troops had to be called out and kept in the disturbed sections of the state for months and the state was in a rebellion, so far as the tobacco districts were concerned.

But the pool held, and the prices began to increase. The figures quoted at the head of this story were paid last season—the most prosperous ever known to Kentucky farmers.

The manufacturers are in a competition and their buyers are paid the price the farmers demanded. Whether this will be the case this year remains to be given as a sure riding, some of the farmers claim knowledge of a move to not produce a crop next year.

Thousands of farmers are at their wits' end for relief. Mortgages have become due soon, and unless tobacco sells at a good price the economic visit, after a long illness. She was an aunt of Col. Winston F. Garth, of Huntsville.

LEXINGTON, Tenn.—The funeral of Mrs. J. P. Parker, who died suddenly in her home in the town of Wildersville, this county, was held at the Jones graveyard, two miles west of Wildersville. The surviving husband, now retired, was for many years one of the leading merchants of Wildersville and of Henderson county. Surviving are nine children.

HAZLEHURST, Miss.—Mrs. Edward Anderson, aged 78, died at the home of her daughter here. She was buried in the Pine Bluff cemetery, where her husband is buried. She had lived in the Pine Bluff community most of her life.

NEWBURN, Tenn.—Mrs. Ella Featherstone, died at her home in Tatumville, a few miles east of Newburn, after an illness extending over a period of several months. She was the wife of Tommie Featherstone, a well-known Dyer county citizen.

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark.—John W. Hunt, an old resident of this city, died at his home in Potosi, Mo., after a short illness caused from a fall in his store about a week prior to his death. Mr. Hunt and his family are remembered here, where he was in business under the name of J. W. Hunt & Son.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—John E. McDougal, prominent farmer, died at his home and was buried in the Savannah cemetery. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

CORINTH, Miss.—James Strachan died at his home Wednesday morning in the Hopewell community. He was one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of that community. Mr. Strachan came to this country years ago with a number of others from Scotland and located in the community where he died.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn.—A. S. Simpson, a well-known farmer of District 15, died at his home following an illness of several months. He is survived by five children and one brother, Rev. R. Simpson, a member of the Methodist conference.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Louis De Mark, a volunteer of the interior garage, was seized with an attack of angina pectoris, an affection of the heart, while at the office of the physicians summoned immediately. Dr. De Mark died in about an hour. He came here six months ago from Pine Bluff, Ark., where his wife and child are now living.

MARRIAGES.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Miss Mary Susan Wilson, of Huntsville, and Wayne Clifton Rogers, of Scottsboro, were married in Birmingham, according to cards received here by friends. They will make their home in Scottsboro.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—A beautiful wedding occurred at Minter city church when Miss Mary Kempton Pleasant became the bride of John Hughes. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a bridal trip.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Mr. and Mrs. Matt Donovan announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna May, to Wiley Mitchell, the wedding to take place early in 1921.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—Dr. T. L. Thomas and Miss Effie Young were married here, Dr. J. J. Ramsey officiating. They will make a short bridal trip to Florida.

LESLIE, Ark.—Miss Florence Wallace, operator in the Southwestern Telephone office at this place, and Rev. Arthur Culom were married here.

RIPLEY, Miss.—Wallace S. Moffitt, of Ripley, and Miss Mildred Barker, of Chubasco, were united in marriage Sunday by Rev. G. S. Jenkins, pastor of the Baptist church at Chalchate.

SENATOBIA, Miss.—W. B. Hall and Miss Myrtle Higginbotham, both of Senatobia, were married in Memphis, they will make Senatobia their future home.

MACON, Miss.—G. R. Stryker and Miss Elmer Kennedy were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage this morning by the Rev. Olin Ray. Mr. and Mrs. Stryker left immediately for Meridian for a short bridal trip.

WALTHAM, Miss.—Mr. Clarence E. Price, from Clay county, and Mrs. Virgie Lee Stagg, daughter of Hon. Joel T. Gibson, who resides in the neighborhood of Magnolia, were happily married last Sunday at the home of the bride's parents.

WALTHAM, Miss.—W. V. Aven, son of William Aven, now dead, and grand-son of the first sheriff Webster county, ever had, and Miss Louie Winter, daughter of Tom Winter, were married last Sunday.

HOLLANDALE, Miss.—On Sunday afternoon Louis Thompson, of this city, and Miss Thomasa Mays, of Clarksdale, were married in the Methodist parsonage, the Rev. J. A. George officiating, in the presence of a few friends.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heaton of this city were announced the engagement and approaching marriage on Dec. 22 of their daughter, Miss Marie Heaton, to C. R. Minor, the wedding to be held in the Catholic church of Clarksdale, with Father Keenan officiating. During the evening of the same day, Mr. and Mrs. Minor will leave for Pine Bluff, Ark., the old home of the bride.

Troops had to be called out and kept in the disturbed sections of the state for months and the state was in a rebellion, so far as the tobacco districts were concerned.

But the pool held, and the prices began to increase. The figures quoted at the head of this story were paid last season—the most prosperous ever known to Kentucky farmers.

The manufacturers are in a competition and their buyers are paid the price the farmers demanded. Whether this will be the case this year remains to be given as a sure riding, some of the farmers claim knowledge of a move to not produce a crop next year.

Thousands of farmers are at their wits' end for relief. Mortgages have become due soon, and unless tobacco sells at a good price the economic visit, after a long illness. She was an aunt of Col. Winston F. Garth, of Huntsville.

LEXINGTON, Tenn.—The funeral of Mrs. J. P. Parker, who died suddenly in her home in the town of Wildersville, this county, was held at the Jones graveyard, two miles west of Wildersville. The surviving husband, now retired, was for many years one of the leading merchants of Wildersville and of Henderson county. Surviving are nine children.

HAZLEHURST, Miss.—Mrs. Edward Anderson, aged 78, died at the home of her daughter here. She was buried in the Pine Bluff cemetery, where her husband is buried. She had lived in the Pine Bluff community most of her life.

NEWBURN, Tenn.—Mrs. Ella Featherstone, died at her home in Tatumville, a few miles east of Newburn, after an illness extending over a period of several months. She was the wife of Tommie Featherstone, a well-known Dyer county citizen.

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark.—John W. Hunt, an old resident of this city, died at his home in Potosi, Mo., after a short illness caused from a fall in his store about a week prior to his death. Mr. Hunt and his family are remembered here, where he was in business under the name of J. W. Hunt & Son.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—John E. McDougal, prominent farmer, died at his home and was buried in the Savannah cemetery. He leaves a widow, two sons and a daughter.

CORINTH, Miss.—James Strachan died at his home Wednesday morning in the Hopewell community. He was one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of that community. Mr. Strachan came to this country years ago with a number of others from Scotland and located in the community where he died.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn.—A. S. Simpson, a well-known farmer of District 15, died at his home following an illness of several months. He is survived by five children and one brother, Rev. R. Simpson, a member of the Methodist conference.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—Louis De Mark, a volunteer of the interior garage, was seized with an attack of angina pectoris, an affection of the heart, while at the office of the physicians summoned immediately. Dr. De Mark died in about an hour. He came here six months ago from Pine Bluff, Ark., where his wife and child are now living.

MARRIAGES.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala.—Miss Mary Susan Wilson, of Huntsville, and Wayne Clifton Rogers, of Scottsboro, were married in Birmingham, according to cards received here by friends. They will make their home in Scottsboro.

GREENWOOD, Miss.—A beautiful wedding occurred at Minter city church when Miss Mary Kempton Pleasant became the bride of John Hughes. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a bridal trip.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Mr. and Mrs. Matt Donovan announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna May, to Wiley Mitchell, the wedding to take place early in 1921.

SAVANNAH, Tenn.—Dr. T. L. Thomas and Miss Effie Young were married here, Dr. J. J. Ramsey officiating. They will make a short bridal trip to Florida.

LESLIE, Ark.—Miss Florence Wallace, operator in the Southwestern Telephone office at this place, and Rev. Arthur Culom were married here.

RIPLEY, Miss.—Wallace S. Moffitt, of Ripley, and Miss Mildred Barker, of Chubasco, were united in marriage Sunday by Rev. G. S. Jenkins, pastor of the Baptist church at Chalchate.

SENATOBIA, Miss.—W. B. Hall and Miss Myrtle Higginbotham, both of Senatobia, were married in Memphis, they will make Senatobia their future home.

MACON, Miss.—G. R. Stryker and Miss Elmer Kennedy were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage this morning by the Rev. Olin Ray. Mr. and Mrs. Stryker left immediately for Meridian for a short bridal trip.